BIOGRAPHY

Deepa Keshvala is a British cinematographer of Indian origin. It was as a teenager that she discovered cinema and design at workshops for young people in the suburbs of London. This first approach led her, at the age of 18, to take a year off and visit a director, friend of her family, in Bollywood. She then falls in awe of the “guy behind the camera” and it’s a revelation: she will be cinematographer.

At the end of her studies at London College of Communication, Deepa started out as assistant director then quickly moved on to assistant camera, accompanying a number of esteemed cinematographers, notably Robbie Ryan, and supported by director Daniel Wolfe who offered her the opportunity to work as second unit, in advertising, music videos and fiction (Catch Me Daddy).

Fan of a colorful, sparkling ambiance, with dynamic and unique framing, Deepa sees photographic work as a way of making people smile and dream. Because if advertising cannot change the world, such visibility justifies serving up absolutely positive thinking and turning it into a way to help people feel good. She was able to demonstrate this on the occasion of her various collaborations with directors such as Leonn Ward (Stella McCartney), Kim Gehrig (Libresse Viva la Vulva), Camille Summers-Valli (Burberry), Dan Emmerson (Loewe) or Bafic (Nike x Roundel).

Deepa Keshvala also accompanies with talent and creativity various musical artists such as Chaka Khan, Jorja Smith, Burna Boy or Snakhips.

BIOGRAPHIE

Deepa Keshvala est une directrice de la photographie britannique d'origine indienne. C'est à l'adolescence qu'elle découvre, à l'occasion d'ateliers pour jeunes dans la banlieue de Londres, les domaines du cinéma et du design. Cette première approche la conduit, à l'âge de 18 ans, à prendre une année sabbatique et rendre visite à un ami de sa famille réalisateur à Bollywood. Elle tombe alors en admiration du « gars derrière la caméra » et c'est une révélation : elle sera directrice de la photographie.

À la fin de son cursus au London College of Communication, Deepa débute comme assistante réalisateur puis passe rapidement assistante caméra, accompagnant un certain nombre de directeurs de la photographie estimés, notamment Robbie Ryan, et soutenue par le réalisateur Daniel Wolfe qui lui offre l'opportunité de travailler en tant que directrice de la photographie en seconde équipe, tant en publicité qu'en vidéoclip et en fiction (Catch Me Daddy).

Adeptes d'ambiances colorées, pétillantes, au cadrage dynamique et singulier, Deepa pense le travail photographique comme une manière de faire sourire et rêver. Car si la publicité ne peut pas changer le monde, une telle visibilité justifie de servir une pensée absolument positive et d'en faire un moyen d'aider les gens à se sentir bien. Elle a pu le démontrer à l'occasion ses différentes collaborations avec des réalisateurs tels que Leonn Ward (Stella McCartney), Kim Gehrig (Libresse Viva la Vulva), Camille Summers-Valli (Burberry), Dan Emmerson (Loewe) ou encore Bafic (Nike x Roundel).

Deepa Keshvala accompagne également avec talents et créativité des artistes musicaux variés comme Chaka Khan, Jorja Smith, Burna Boy ou Snakhips.
